GORDON JOSEPH HAWKINS

1919 – 2004

Gordon Hawkins, internationally renowned criminologist and former Director of the Sydney University Institute of Criminology, died in Sydney on Sunday the 29th of February 2004 at the age of 84. He was well known for the "Honest Politician's Guide To Crime Control" (1970) (with Norval Morris), and a series of studies on gun control (1987) and incapacitation (1995) with Franklin Zimring, and imprisonment in America (1981) with Michael Sherman.

Gordon Hawkins made a huge contribution to the establishment of criminology at the University of Sydney between 1961 and his retirement from teaching in 1984. The contemporary standing of the Institute of Criminology owes much to his initial work,

Chris Cunneen, Director of the Institute of Criminology, and Greg Woods, will introduce some former colleagues & friends who will speak of their recollections:
